

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

described as positive and the other as idealist. The one treats law as a fact to be examined; the other recognizes the existence of the ethical element, the ineffaceable distinction between what ought to be and what is. Del Vecchio belongs to the idealist and to the type of idealist last referred to. His teaching is clearly expressed and is peculiarly free from the heavy verbiage so common to philosophical writers. He is a student of comparative law in its widest sense and recognizes its value as a storehouse of experience. The distinctive note of his teaching, however, is that there is and must be an element in jurisprudence not derivable from experience. He presents a point of view that is worthy of consideration and we heartily commend his book to our readers.

H. W. A.

Park's Annotated Code of Georgia. Revised and brought down to date under the supervision of Orville A. Park, Macon, Ga. Published by authority of the General Assembly. The Harrison Company, Atlanta, Ga. 1914. Volume 1.

This is the first volume of Georgia's new code and comprises the "Political Code." The publishers guarantee that the set will not exceed seven volumes. Volumes 2 and 3 will contain the "Civil Code"; Volumes 4 and 5 will contain the "Practice Code"; Volume 6 will contain the "Criminal Code." The last volume will contain a general index, an index to all local laws from 1800 through 1914 and miscellaneous tables. The work will be kept up to date by the issuance of a Cumulative Supplement. The text of this code is to be the same as that of the Hopkin's Code of 1910 with such amendments and changes as have been made necessary by subsequent legislation. The lack of annotations in the Code of 1910 is the principal reason for the necessity of this revision. To make up this deficiency notes have been placed under proper sections and have been arranged under appropriate catchwords in alphabetical order. Federal citations constitute one of the new features of the work. The mechanical system of cross-references from one section to another is excellent. The printing of the work is of the highest degree of excellence. Its accuracy shows the labor and skill that must have been brought to bear by the compilers. When the set is completed Georgia will probably have the most complete code of any state in the union.

H. W. A.